Coming next month...

By MA2 KEVIN FAHLUND

Lock your doors, turn on outside lights and spend the evening outdoors with your neighbors and police. Send a message to criminals that our neighborhoods are organized and fighting back!

The 23rd annual National Night Out will be held Aug. 1. This year's event is slated for 5 to 8 p.m. at the NSA Mid-South soccer field, located on Hornet Road behind the Pat Thompson Center. Sponsored by the National Association of Town Watch, this event involves more than 10,000 communities in all 50 states, U.S territories, Canada and military bases worldwide to heighten crime, safety, and drug prevention awareness. Additionally, it strengthens neighborhood and police-community partnerships.

Last year's National Night Out drew a crowd in excess of 3,000. Organizers expect an even larger attendance this year since more agencies are participating.

NSA Mid-South and City of Millington fire departments will have fire-fighting equipment on display. Police departments several area communities as well as the Tennessee Highway Patrol will also participate, and some will conduct police dog demonstrations. There will also be a helicopter display from Life Flight and a Black Hawk Helicopter from the Tennessee National Guard. The Tennessee Emergency Management Agency will be displaying their command control center.

The U.S. Army Veterinary Clinic on base will offer pet IDs (a chip implanted in the pet's ear) for $15. Civilians would have an additional activation fee. This is a rare opportunity for the civilian community since this service is normally only avail-

LINK-Perspective magazine back in print as LINK

By MCC TERESA J. FRITH
NPC COMMUNICATIONS OFFICE

After nearly two years as an online-only publication, the former LINK-Perspective, the Navy Personnel Command's magazine for Navy members, is back in print as the new LINK magazine. The first issue is expected to hit the streets in mid-July, and has already been posted on the NPC web site.

"The new hard-copy LINK is a handy reference manual that compliments our web-based version to give sailors the information they need to support and guide their careers," said Rear Adm. David A. Gove, commander of the Navy Personnel Command and the Naval Personnel Development Command. "We learned from our polls that a hard-copy version was preferred by sailors and would be of broader benefit to them."

LINK-Perspective began in the 1970s and has evolved from a small black and white newsletter to what will now be a full-color magazine. It will be published three times a year, both hard copy and online, and will feature articles on policies, procedures and products that will help sailors enhance and guide their careers.

Despite the shortening of the name to LINK, the magazine will continue to support both officers and enlisted sailors, as

NSA to host IA fair

By DAVID W. CRENSHAW
NSA MID-SOUTH PUBLIC AFFAIRS

It used to be that the only guarantees in life were death and taxes. But for today's military families, they can add individual augmentation (IA) assignments to that list. With the need for troops continuing in Afghanistan, Iraq and at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, and the added concern of current events in Iran and North Korea, not to mention concerns at home ranging from terrorist activity to natural disasters, more Sailors are in the dirt, with their M-16A1s by their sides, during the Navy's Individual Augmentee Combat Training at Fort Jackson, S.C. and more, our sailors are having to answer the call.

"Senior Navy leadership has told us that every sailor should expect to deploy on an IA at least once in each paygrade," said Capt. Matt Straughan, NSA Mid-South commanding officer. "Navy families need to be ready, even on shore duty."

Which is why the base is sponsoring a Family Readiness and Pre-deployment Fair, July 19 at the Pat Thompson Center, beginning at 5 p.m. "We want to start getting families and service members ready for an IA early on, so when the phone call comes, we're ready," explained CMDCM

Bob Stocklin, NSA Mid-South command master chief. "Fleet sailors and their families get briefed before deployment, and now we want to do the same thing for our sailors here."

Stocklin said the fair will begin with short presentations from several of the agencies and organizations on base that help families during deployments, crises and separations, such as the Fleet and Family Support Center, Navy Marine Corps Relief Society and the ombudsman. Also

Your First Assignment:

PREPARE FOR SCHOOL

By ART FRITH
NSA MID-SOUTH PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The start of the 2006-2007 school year is fast approaching here in Shelby County and there are a few things parents must take care of before their child can take their seat in class.

The first day of classes for Shelby County Schools is Aug. 7. Registration for elementary and middle school students will be held Aug. 7 from 7:30 a.m.-12 p.m. and 4-7 p.m. To enroll their child, parents must provide a certified copy of their child's birth certificate. Proof of residence documents showing a current address of the parent or guardian are also required. Two of the five following items are acceptable: sale contract; real estate tax receipt; mortgage information; current Memphis Light Gas & Water bill or turn-on receipt, or municipality water bill; a lease or rental contract. Personnel living in base housing need only to provide their housing letter. Any document which evidences only a post office box as an address shall not be accepted.

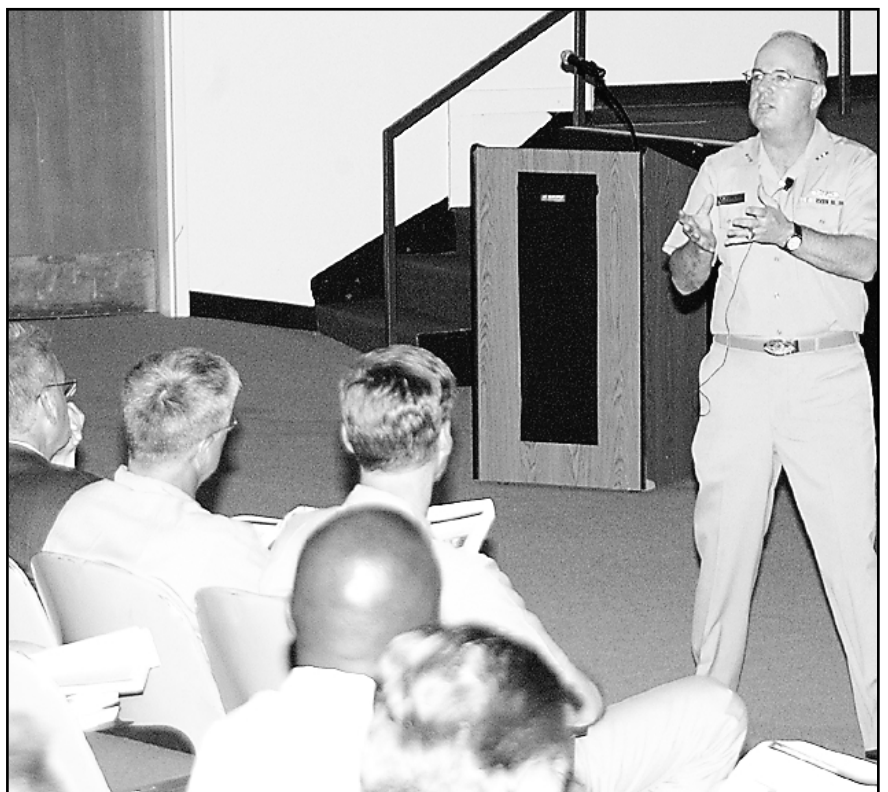

Kindergarten students must be five years old on (or before) Sept. 30 and provide a certified copy of their birth certificate, proof of recent medical examination (within the past six months), a Tennessee Child Health Record (or temporary Certificate of Immunization), and their Social Security card. The Memphis and Shelby County Health Department provides school and childcare physicals at area Public Health Clinics. The cost of the exam is $85 and includes any childhood immunizations that are needed. In Millington, the clinic is located at 8225 Hwy. 51 North. You may call 873-4433 for more information or to set up an appointment.

Immunization is important when enrolling students. Kindergarten through 12th grades must have two doses of MMR. All kindergarten and seventh grade students must have proof of hepatitis B immunization. All kindergarten students have to show proof of chickenpox immunization as well. New students, who were previously enrolled in another school system in Tennessee, may enroll pending receipt of their academic and health records. A student, who transfers into the system from out of state or from a non-public school, must provide a permanent Tennessee Child Health Record

COMMENTARY

Security still needs to be your #1 concern

BY PACIFIC FLEET MASTER CHIEF (SS/SW) R.D. WEST

Hoo-yah, Warriors. This week I want to get right to the point because some recent events have me really concerned.

By now, I'm sure most of you have heard about the recent loss of personal information by the Veterans Administration. About 26.5 million of our retired, former, active and Reserve shipmates had their personal information stolen when a VA employee took the information home with him.

Incredulous as this all sounds, this incident brings to light two significant issues that affect us all on a daily basis: information security and identity theft.

First, let's talk information security. I mentioned this in an article earlier this year, but after something like this, I think it needs reinforcing.

What we have is a government employee, much like any of us, who brought home sensitive data on millions of people - despite rules prohibiting such actions.

Sure, the original plan was probably just to get a step ahead of a big project or just work in general. Maybe it was the usual procedure because no one seemed to mind or care. I wonder how many people care now? At least 26.5 million, I'd wager.

The same thing applies to us in the military. We are always charged with protecting sensitive and classified information. You just don't realize the impact its unauthorized release can have.

We don't have the option of just sliding a disc of information into a briefcase and take it home to keep working on it. The initiative is laudable, and we can say it was an admirable intention, but we've seen how it is the wrong answer.

So the next time you see "For Official Use Only," or a document that is classified, make sure you protect it according to its classification. That means keeping it secure and not taking it out of the office to work on it at home.

Now, I need to point out that the VA and the DoD are doing some great work fixing this situation. Many of us have gotten or will be getting very soon a letter explaining what has happened and what steps we need to take to protect ourselves. So far there have been no reports of illegal actions resulting from the data loss, which is good news. But we still need to be proactive.

That brings me to the next point I want to discuss about dealing with this mess now.

The theft of all this material makes a lot of us susceptible to identity theft.

Folks, this is one of the fastest-growing crimes in our society today. It doesn't really matter who you are or how much money you have. All a criminal needs is a few bits of personal information, and boom! You are the proud new owner of a bunch of stuff you've never seen and probably never will.

And the main reason identity theft is so much on the rise, is because many of us make it so easy.

You know all those credit card offers you get in the mail and immediately throw away? That's what I'm talking about.

All some dumpster-diving creep has to do now is fill out the form, mark the change of address block, and a bright new credit card with your name gets mailed to whatever address he puts down. And that's just the simple stuff.

So you should definitely invest in a shredder. And get one of those confetti shredders so whatever you are shredding turns into an impossible jigsaw puzzle.

Next, the Internet provides a wealth of information ripe for the picking if you aren't paying attention and protecting yourselves.

Recently the Center for Personal Development put up a course on Navy Knowledge Online's e-Learning to help you all avoid the risks of identity theft. I really think everyone should check it out, and I would think good LPOs and LCPOs would be pushing to make sure their sailors complete the course (hint, hint).

The course is simply titled "Identity Theft" and is designed to teach you some simple steps to avoid theft of your personal information. It also covers the personal and professional consequences if your information falls into the wrong hands.

Another resource to help you out is the Federal Trade Commission. For those of us who may have been affected by the VA theft, the FTC has established an information web site with a lot of tips, credit bureau phone numbers, and recommended actions to protect your credit history.

You can find this VA-related information at <http://www.ftc.gov/veterans>. There is another web site with good info to help you out at <http://www.firstgov.gov/>.

There's also a news article from the FTC warning veterans and their families to beware of email phishing and phone scams that take advantage of people in vulnerable situations like this one. The full article on this is at <http://www.ftc.gov/bcp/edu/pubs/consumer/alerts/alt166.htm>, so check it out.

Finally the FTC has lots of general ID theft material on their ID theft home page. Good reading on what to watch out for, how to avoid getting burned, and what to do if your ID is stolen to minimize the impact. You can find it at <http://www.consumer.gov/idtheft/>, so everyone should take the time to get smart now.

Warriors, I know it's sometimes difficult to remember all the things we have to watch out for in our fast-paced society. But as technology offers us newer, faster conveniences, there will always be those out there who find ways to use those benefits against us. The key is to stay on top of things so they can't make us victims.

But your Navy is ready to help and is standing by. Take advantage of the resources available to you, and together we'll watch each other's backs. Hoo-yah!

Too good to be true: Internet auction fraud

Too good to be true? Then most likely it is. Keeping in mind this old phrase that you probably heard from Mom and Dad, you can protect yourself from online auction fraud.

All too often, we hear horror stories about identity theft, but online auction fraud is just as real. With internet auctions becoming such a huge success, more and more people may lose money online.

Just recently, I was in the market for a used car. I found a 2005 Nissan Altima advertised online for $5,000. Sounds too good to be true, well it probably was. The seller was located in England and asked for payment to be made through a third party, half up-front and half upon delivery.

Through a little research, I soon discovered that the last registered owner was in Texas. So how did this car end up in England, and why was the price so cheap? I can't answer those questions for sure because I did not try to purchase the car.

This story may sound outlandish, but it is becoming more and more common. People may be taken in by a good deal, make a payment and never receive the promised product. Unfortunately, in most circumstances there is very little that may be done to recoup the lost payment.

Although the perpetrator may be guilty of fraud, or even theft, by the time the authorities track the person down the money is long gone and there is nothing left to give to the victim. Even though the perpetrator may be found guilty and face jail time, the victim never feels vindicated unless they get their money back.

In order to avoid these circumstances, here are a few things to remember:

First, if you are making purchases online, use reputable retailers that you are familiar with. Nationwide chains or large auction houses tend to offer some protection, although limited, to their users. Many provide feedback forums so that consumers may get a feel for the reputation of the seller. New sellers or those with negative feedback should be avoided.

Second, using a reputable payment source is highly recommended. Using PayPal or a credit card that offers consumer fraud protection helps recoup lost money. Many credit cards with a consumer protection option will refund the money and sue the perpetrator themselves.

Finally, do not give out personal information when using online auctions. This information includes your social security number, your bank account information or any other identifying information that may be used to get into your accounts.

Just remember, if it sounds too good to be true, it is!

If you have any questions about an internet auction fraud, please contact the Naval Legal Service Office at 874-7379 to set up an appointment.

Chaplain's Corner

GOD BLESS YOU

BY CHAPLAIN ROB BEEDE

Did you ever tell someone, "God bless you" after they sneeze? Why? What does it mean to wish a person God's "blessings"? We sing, "God Bless America!" What is a "blessing? What are we really asking God to do?

There is all sorts of speculation as to why we say "God bless you" when someone sneezes. Some feel that practice began during the time of Pope Gregory the Great (540-604 AD). During that time, there was a plague and people would wish a person sneezing God's blessing in hopes they weren't getting the plague. Others say the reason we say "God bless you" when someone sneezes is because it was believed in medieval times that a demon could enter a person when they sneezed, so they would bless them.

To "bless" a person is to ask God to bring his favor and goodness on them. It is a prayer to God for good things to happen to that individual. The blessing could be in God giving them health, life, riches and friends.

The real point to all this is that your words can actually be prayers sent up to God to help build a person up and encourage them. My prayer for you is for God to bless you today and use you as a blessing in the lives of others!

MCPON Campa takes helm of enlisted force

By MCI L. A. SHIVELY
MASTER CHIEF PETTY OFFICER OF THE NAVY PUBLIC AFFAIRS

WASHINGTON (NNS) - On Monday, MCPON (SW/FMF) Joe R. Campa Jr. took the helm of the enlisted force as the Navy's eleventh master chief petty officer of the Navy, receiving the ceremonial cutlass from MCPON (SS/AW) Terry D. Scott, in a change of office ceremony at the Washington Navy Yard.

The ceremony marked the conclusion of a 29-year Navy career for Scott, who held the office of MCPON the past four years. "He led," said the Chief of naval operations (CNO), Adm. Mike Mullen. He elaborated, explaining how Scott's leadership engaged sailors to "bring all manner of people together to solve problems." Mullen stressed that many of the new programs for today's Sailors were a result of Scott's efforts, such as greater educational benefits, redesigned uniforms that are more attractive and durable, plus incorporating a "culture of fitness" aimed at improving both physical and mental health.

The CNO also recognized that Scott continued to work until his very last day in office, giving a recent interview to a major news station about the problem of predatory lenders, businesses targeting sailors for payday or title loans with enormous interest rates.

Mullen then congratulated the newest MCPON. "Master Chief Campa is not just an exceptional corpsman, he's a terrific leader - a command master chief with an enormous wealth of experience in the fleet that makes him the right sailor at the right time to follow MCPON Scott," Mullen said. "Master Chief Campa, you must know how big the shoes you must fill are, and I have every confidence in you. I appreciate your service and your willingness to step up to this enormous responsibility," Campa thanked Scott and his wife in a speech after he accepted the office, offering his deep appreciation for their hard work improving the lives of sailors and Navy families. "Together you have made the Navy a better place," he said.

Campa then acknowledged his predecessors and set the direction for his term in office.

"I want every sailor to achieve the full measure of their potential because it not only makes them better Sailors - it makes them better citizens," said Campa. "And like my predecessors, this is where my commitment lies and this is where my energy will be focused." Campa most recently served as command master chief of Joint Task Force Guantanamo Bay after graduating from the Naval War College in Newport, R.I.

McGruff, the Crime Prevention Dog and Sparky the Fire Prevention Dog will make an appearance. There will be games such as a dunk tank sponsored by the Navy Federal Credit Union along with moonwalks playgrounds and a rock climbing wall and much more.

All activities are free except the pet ID chips and food, which will be offered at cost.

For more information, contact the National Night Out chairman, MA2 Kevin Fahlund, at 874-5665.

member and their families are strongly encouraged to attend." Stocklin also noted that while the focus of the fair will be potential IAs, there will also be a lot of valuable information put out that can be beneficial during natural or man-made disasters, to include earthquakes and hurricanes.

"The Navy cares for our families and wants to help them prepare for the day-to-day operations, for deployments, and during crisis situations," Straughan said.

NSA to get new golf clubhouse

The NSA Mid-South MWR Department breaks ground on a new clubhouse at the Glen Eagle Golf Course. "In addition to replacing a building that was originally built in the '40s, the new facility is designed to optimize customer service space and minimize land use," said Ronnie Miles, director of NSA Mid-South' MWR Department. "The cart storage facility will be located in the basement of the new facility, thus requiring less labor to manage the fleet of 80 golf carts." Pictured are, from left to right, Stan Rowland; Bill Mungia, director of Navy Golf; Cmdr. Cindy Manning, public works officer for Naval Facilities Engineering Command Midwest, Public Works Department Mid-South; Randall Lindley, project superintendent for Omega General, the contracting firm handling the construction; Mike Penn, head golf pro and general manager of the Glen Eagle Golf Course; Capt. Matt Straughan, commanding officer of NSA Mid-South; and Miles.

WHEN IT COMES TO BACK-TO-SCHOOL

BY ART FRITH
NSA MID-SOUTH PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Summertime is winding down and summer vacation is coming to an end. That means back-to-school time for children and parents. While the kids may be ready to catch up with old friends and making new ones with the start of the upcoming school year, parents are busy crunching the numbers to stretch their money as the first day of class approaches. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, families with school-age children will spend an average of $443.76 on back to school items last year. Clothing took the largest chunk of that figure at $293, followed by school supplies and electronics. Be sure to shop around to get the most bang for your buck. Look through the local newspaper ads and Web sites for those bargains that will save you money on school supplies and clothes for your student. Check with your child's school to see if there is a list of required supplies, so that you don't buy something not needed. Some schools offer pre-packaged supply sets as a way to raise money. Here in Tennessee, the state helps take the sting out of back-to-school shopping with a three-day State Sales Tax Holiday on clothing, school supplies, and computers. As part of this holiday, from Aug. 4 thru Aug. 6, clothing and school supplies valued at less than one-hundred dollars per item, and computers with a price of less than $1,500 per item are exempt from sales tax. The holiday, however, does not exempt clothing accessories, protective equipment, sports or recreational equipment, art supplies, school instructional materials, school computer supplies, or any items used in a trade or business or those items leased or rented. Items commonly sold together may not be priced separately to take advantage of the exemption. Certain restrictions on layaway sales, coupon and discount use, rain checks, exchanges, delivery charges, and back orders apply.

or an up-to-date temporary certificate. The Shelby County Board of Education also provides an educational program for properly certified and verified children, ages three through 21, with disabilities. A pre-school program for children ages three through five with disabilities is also available. Call 321-2710 for more information or assistance. In the Tipton County School District, students new to the district who are enrolling for the first time should register at the zoned school on July 25. The first day of school is an abbreviated day on Aug.

2, with dismissal at 11:30 a.m. The first full day of school is on Aug. 7. Their documentation and health requirements are similar to Shelby County and Memphis City Schools. Call 476-7148, or go on-line at <http://www.tipton-county.com>, for more information. For more information on the Shelby County Schools system and registration, go on-line at <http://www.scsk12.org> or call the Shelby County Health Department's School Health Program at 544-7646, between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. If your child will be attending Memphis City Schools, early registration will be held on Aug. 3 and 5 with the first day of classes on Aug. 14. Additional information for Memphis City Schools can be found on-line at <http://www.memphis-schools.k12.tn.us>.

Auto Skills Shop (Bldg. N-397)
Open Tuesday - Friday, 10 a.m.-6 p.m.
Saturday 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Closed Sunday, Monday and holidays

The Auto Skills Shop is here for those who prefer a more hands-on approach to auto maintenance. The Auto Skills Shop has the facility, equipment, tools, and library of repair manuals available for you to change a spark plug or do a major overhaul or restoration project. Access to a few professional tools such as our computerized tire spin balancing equipment and hydraulic lifts make it easier for you to get the job done right. Trained instructors are available to assist patrons at all times. Services that are offered by the Auto Skills Shop instructors for a nominal fee include: universal joint change, brake drum and rotor turning, on-vehicle rotor turning, tire balance and rotations, and a hands-on inspection of used vehicles that patrons are considering to purchase. Miscellaneous auto parts available for purchase.

MWR POV Storage
A convenient, secure and accessible 24/7 place to park your RV, boat, or that extra vehicle taking up space in your driveway! Come check out the MWR POV Storage and get your home organized. We have several spacious covered and non-covered lots to choose from. Spaces are located near the Auto Skills Center on the north-side of the base in bldg. N-397. POV Storage Office open Monday - Saturday 7:30 a.m. - 4 p.m. Closed Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays.

MWR Car Wash
The Car Wash facility is located across the street from the Auto Skills Shop. There are five coin-operated vacuum cleaner stalls, five wand-style car wash bays with wax systems and Touch free automatic. RV dumping facility is also available.

Equipment Rental Center
Open Monday-Saturday 7:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Closed Sunday and holidays

Canopy tents, dunk tanks and popcorn poppers are just a few of the items we offer that can add a festive and a professional touch to command functions, family reunions, birthday parties and many other special activities. Our staff has helped hundreds of customers outfit their events with festival equipment. Our staff will carefully review your specific needs, help you select the right equipment, and show you how to set it up.

Equipment is available on a first come, first served basis. Check with us the next time you are planning an outing or a special event. For more information call (901) 874-5675.
